TSCA Conference 2014

Call for Papers and Panels

TEACHING RESPONSIBILITY IN AN IRRESPONSIBLE WORLD

Educators on all levels are expected to teach more than the outcomes in their field. With new state requirements Social Responsibility and Personal Responsibility are expected to be taught in core courses taught at the college and/or university level beginning Fall 2014. How is this effecting us as educators not only on the college level but in high schools and middle schools as well. How do we teach this generation of students? What lessons are we learning about ourselves as Educators? And most of all can responsibility be taught?
